1. An airfield is north of Akmolinsk (51°08'N/71°25'E), Kazakh S.S.R., and north of a very shallow river 100 meters wide. The boundaries of the field are not marked. A radio station is southeast of the landing field.
2. Most of the planes seen were biplanes. A twin-engine plane made an intermediate landing at the field about once a week.
3. No more than four biplanes were seen at the Akmolinsk airfield. A courier plane made daily flights. No troops, except for an airfield detail, were stationed in the town.
4. Another airfield was located in Petropavlovsk (54°52'N/69°03'E). Biplanes were occasionally seen there.
